Maloy Ministry Moments

November 2026

The family wasn't home, so the one remaining meal package couldn't be delivered. As part of an ongoing Unto humanitarian project, our partners in this (Central Asian) country regularly help families in need of food. Sasha, recognizing it as an important lifeline in his community, volunteered to find someone whom it could help.

He noticed a woman selling sunflower seeds and candy near a large, nearby apartment building. Sasha knew that such vendors often lived hand to mouth, and he approached her, introduced himself, and gave Dilnuz* the food package. During their conversation, he told Dilnuz about Jesus Christ. He had a Bible with him, and he gave it to her as well.

A few days later, Sasha met her again in the same place, and she was reading the Bible! They continued their conversation about faith. Later, Dilnuz came to believe in Christ, and Sasha began visiting her stand periodically to support her faith journey.

One day, as he passed by, he saw a particularly joyful scene: other women had gathered around Dilnuz and she was reading the Bible to them and telling them about Christ! She, who had only recently heard the Good News herself, was now sharing it with those around her. Most recently, she led two of her friends to Christ!

Today, Dilnuz continues to grow in her faith. We are praying that she will begin leading a new and consistent Bible study. We think of God's sovereignty to arrange a meeting with Dilnuz, who was not only in need, but ready to hear about and respond to Jesus. That one remaining food package became the doorway through which the Gospel touched this woman's life and began to touch the lives of those around her.

Thank you for fueling the work of relieving suffering, restoring dignity, and revealing the hope of Christ in the toughest places on earth!

This month we had the honor of inviting & encouraging other families to be involved in the mission of Unto via the FamilyLife Today podcast. Episode to drop in the spring!

This month, 1,836 faithful volunteers gathered at the Unto Global Logistics Center in Lancaster, PA to prepare critical aid for international shipment. Local staff teams will build relationships with people in need as they personally distribute the packaged aid, and at the right time, they will share the hope of Christ. This aid will impact more than 126,547 people in the coming months! Thank you, October Mission Packing Project!
